Graeme Mackenzie was awarded a scholarship to study history at Cambridge University England. It was whilst researching East Anglian families for a radio series that he began to take an interest in genealogy; and this was eventually to lead him to return to Scotland to investigate his own ancestry, and to learn all of the Scottish history he'd missed while studying British History at an English University. In 1989 he set up "Highland Roots" in Inverness with the intention of specializing in the history and genealogy of the Highland Clans, as his family home remains in the "Capital of the Highlands". He served as Chairman of the Clan Mackenzie Society of Scotland & the UK for two years. In the course of his work as a professional genealogist, he has collected a considerable amount of information on other Scottish families and names, and has pursued a special interest in the nature of the Scottish clan and its system. He has served as Chairman of the Highland Family History Society, with over 600 members worldwide. In 2013 he was elected Chairman of the Assoc. of Highland Clans and Societies. For many years he has been attending Highland Games and Clan Gatherings in Canada and the USA to meet and talk to MacMillans and MacKenzies and to give presentations and lectures on Scottish history and genealogy at Celtic Groups and to Scottish Interest Groups.
